

January 2013 promises to be a culturally exciting period and Pro Helvetia New Delhi has an entire gamut of projects in theatre, literature, video art and dance for its audiences.

PARALLEL CITIES (CIUDADES PARALELAS) comes to Delhi after Berlin, Buenos Aires, Warsaw, Zurich and Kolkata. Pro Helvetia New Delhi along with its partner Goethe-Institut /Max Mueller Bhavan is delighted to host the project and welcome Stefan Kaegi and his team in Delhi and Jaipur, as part of the 15th Bharat Rang Mahotsav. In each city, this portable festival of interventions in public spaces, is re-contextualized and staged with local performers, thus making the collaboration even further meaningful.

The Long Night of Literature has become an annual feature that the German speaking audience of Delhi looks forward to. This year we present Swiss author Dorothee Elmiger together with her translator, Katy Derbyshire. The programme will be in German and English.

Finally, we have been able to bring Swiss choreographer Cindy Van Acker to India and are delighted to present her works LANX and OBTUS to audiences in Mumbai and Bangalore, the latter as part of the Attakkalari Biennial.

Looking forward to seeing you all at the presentations.
