

With computer game designing establishing itself as a new form of art and entertainment, it's potential, whether artistic, narrative or technical, is immense. Gaming design entails collaboration of designers, scriptwriters, animators and composers who are needed to create these truly comprehensive works of art. An interactive medium, computer games will shape the way coming generations understand art.

Pro Helvetia New Delhi is happy to invest in the younger generation of artists and has invited four young Swiss game developers who are currently in India. Nadezda Suvorova and Marine Sergent from Geneva University of Art and Design (HEAD - Genève) and Mischa Geiser and Simon Kovatsch from Zurich University of the Arts (ZHdK) are here to participate in Game Gazer.

With the objective of further bolstering our effort to promote game designing, Pro Helvetia New Delhi has also invited Chris Solarski, artist, game designer and author from Switzerland to conduct a session on The Aesthetics of Game Art, Design and 21st Century Convergence at the 4th Animation Convention in Delhi.

We continue in our endeavour to promote artistic creation and support projects which give art and design a new stimulus.
