

As January 2011 approaches, we urge artists and arts practitioners to apply for the residency being offered by Pro Helvetia. For more information visit 'myprohelvetia'.

Eight poets from India and Europe will participate in a poetry translation workshop as part of Poetry Connections. The workshop will bring poets in contact with various contexts, languages, regions, styles and formats. It aims for cross-translation in different directions, providing an environment where participants can learn about each other's literary tradition and the contemporary context in which each of them writes.

By associating with Literature Across Frontier's (LAF) translation workshop and Poetry Connections, Pro Helvetia – Swiss Arts Council reiterates its belief that translation is a creative activity. Translation increases exchange between language areas.

Pro Helvetia's project, 'Moving Words - promotion of translation 2009-2011' acknowledges the importance of translation. The project aims to illustrate the various facets of a translator's work, and shows how translation can best help an arts foundation to engage with new audiences.
